Griggs International Academy is developing several new projects: mentoring program, discussion-based assessment, personalized learning, on-site events, and more Faculty/Student time through videoconferencing. An additional 25 courses (many that do not require textbooks) have been updated in the curriculum with a focus on adding high school Math, History, and Science courses that will be helpful additions to NAD Schools. There has been a special task force team created to work specifically on grades 1-8. The Griggs Team has developed specific action plans to make significant changes in elementary courses in 2017. Measures are being taken to broaden the Griggs student base, by having courses approved by California University in January 2017. The Griggs administration is dedicated to serving the NAD schools and building a stronger community for online learners. Griggs International Academy seeks to INSPIRE learning, TRANSPIRE lives, and SERVE the world through Seventh-day Adventist Education.

GRIGGS INTERNATIONAL ACADEMY

Rob Thomas provided an overview of the current plans for PhysicalGenesis Fitness Testing to take place from March 1-April 30, 2017. He noted a discontinuation of the Health Behavior Survey and parent consent form. Improvements to the process include an update to the PhysicalGenesis Website and FAQ's section; a six member La Sierra staff to review data; Physical Genesis as an NAD program; and the introduction of an updated WELLNET instructional video to be released soon. Rob is asking for the assistance of everyone to get the word out with the hope of having 10,000 participants. A power point slide show is available in google docs that encapsulates his presentation.

PHYSICALGENESIS 2017

Bradley Giese over a two day training period, provided a workshop on Data Analysis for Continuous School Improvement. He demonstrated a framework to be used in visioning and planning that would help establish a process to create a path for organizational change.

DATA ANALYSIS FOR CONTINUOUS SCOOOL IMPROVEMENT PD

The NAD Education Curriculum Committee had a robust follow-up discussion and reflection time on the previous two day continuous school improvement training process. Some verbalized takeaways included:

REVIEW OF PROFESSTIONAL DEVELOPMENT SEMINAR

- "it was like drinking from a fire hose"
- the "systems" approach was appreciated
- it provided a model to strengthen Accreditation Standard # 9 "Standard for School Improvement"
- it was filtered through a faith-based understanding of education systems
- there were many pieces that could have immediate value
- it would be good to have exemplars in each union
- we need clarity and collaboration on "the big ideas" that impact all
- we need more clarity on the process/steps involved
- we should be looking for a shared vision
- we need school improvement as professional development at all levels of the system
- a questionnaire needs to be developed to survey the curriculum committee to establish consensus on what is really important and what really matters

VOTED to invite Brad Giese to the NAD May Education Advisory in Chicago, for a half-day meeting using the results of various provided data to assist the advisory in creating a relevant application for an NAD School Improvement Plan.

ECEC REPORT

Evelyn Sullivan presented that the Advisory participated in a field trip on Friday, December 1, 2016 and visited Great City Kids Learning Academy, a center about 9 minutes away. Prior to the visit ECEC divided the standards and went in with questions that pertained to each standard and things to look for. After the visit, ECEC returned and began to write on large post-its for each of the standards. ECEC then divided the post-its into two sections “Pros and Cons”, then identified items that would become either commendations or recommendations. Then ECEC went through the motion of compiling a “mock” report and went through the current Pre-K Accreditrac site. The pilot will begin in the Fall of 2017.

Secondary schools currently accept students who come from a standards based grading system. Only a couple of secondary schools were identified that provide some type of standards or proficiency based program or grading. ALC EDUCATION REPORT

The Mid-American Union Conference Education Advisory Voted in light of the new Department of Labor ruling (effective December 1, 2016) we are urgently requesting the NAD to give us clear, specific, and legal guidance regarding employment practices so that we, the conferences of the Mid-America Union, can be in consistent compliance with federal law.

MID-AMERICA UNION EDUCATION REQUEST

This request on General Guidance for the U.S. Department of Labor Regulation Changes for Exempt (Salary) Employees and its affect for Employees and Locally Funded Employees in the U.S. was not acted on due to the US District Court ordered injunction halting the implementation and enforcement of that Regulation pending a decision of the Court on the merits of a number of legal challenges against it.

VOTED to accept the ACDE report as present with highlights listed below:

16:63
ACDE REPORT

Common themes from the university reports were: declining enrollments, except Oakwood who had a decline last year but an increase this year, and Southwestern that remained the same, budget issues, opening and closing programs such as the counseling program at Walla Walla due in part to the difficulty in finding SDA professors with proper credentials, difficulty filling vacancies such as qualified literacy professors at La Sierra, and psychology professors at PUC, use of national assessment instrument for teacher performance-edTPA for teacher licensure, struggling with non-Adventist student issues regarding faith-based curriculum,

UNIVERSITY REPORTS

John McCoy presented general agenda topics that were presented, such as:

ACDE POINTS OF AGENDA INTEREST

- Carol requested that we review the Teacher Education Program Endorsement document and we gave our approval as presented.
- ACDE participated in a live webinar on artificial intelligence that is used for teacher training. This program, Mursion, creates scenarios that teachers will face once they get into the classroom. This program uses Avatars with live voice-overs as teachers deal with the situations presented in the scenarios. It's possible to create a multi-grade session with the virtual classroom since many EPP are far away from multi-grade schools.
- Brief overview of upcoming teachers' convention in August, 2018.

- Brief discussion on NAD Education Taskforce recommendations that address pastor support, collaborative efforts, funding sources, spiritual plans, and PR relative to our church schools.
- Announced that Encounter for grades 9 & 10 is done and grade 11 is awaiting feedback. We continue to support the Encounter Bible series and provide training for our professors who teach Bible methods.
- Pegi Flynt provided an update on TDEC actions and current certification courses.
- Also discussed the upcoming summer conference on Faith and Science.
- Concerned with state certification and NAD certification. Some states require all teachers be state certified even if they are applying for employment with a church school. Some Unions have adapted the view that teachers must also be state certified in addition to NAD Certification.
- How do you measure teaching impact for all EPP programs in our NAD (possibly Larry and Martha can help us track), this can be a very daunting task since many States that have adapted matrices for measuring impact on students' achievement are having issues quantifying what components can be attributed to EPP by teachers (graduated from those programs over the first two years of their teaching).
- Teachers without Bible methods training can take Encounter training then add 1 credit so it is on their records...CEU for $95.00. We will address this further with NAD.
- Pastors who want to teach Bible classes need to be certified since that is part of the certification requirements of NAD, and go through the designated Encounter training to be able to use the new Bible program.
- We would like to have input into the final teacher certification manual when it is completed especially as it relates to classes needed for certification since this can have implications for our course offering at our EPP. Most of our students who graduate from our teacher education program have more credits than any other program especially if students are getting both SDA and State certifications.
- EPP are currently supporting the work of the Unions in participating on Curriculum Committee, Education Advisory and Superintendents' Council, some also serve on Conference Board of Education. It was noted that EPP are committed to working with their Unions and Conferences in providing needed training for teachers in NAD, sometimes EPPs are not being asked to support since some officials at Conference think professors are too occupied or busy. The consensus of Deans and Chairs is that we want to support the work in SDA education in NAD, since we are committed to Seventh-day Adventist education, we are here to serve.
- Encouraged Chairs and Deans to promote the Faith and Science Conference at their universities and encourage religion and science professors to attend next year's conference since slots have been created for them to attend.

- Highlighted the importance of faculty not only in the Education and Religion Departments to make sure they adhere to the standards of the organization as dictated by various University Boards since faculty are hired by individual universities and not by the NAD or the World Church. NAD is currently working on a policy and will eventually present to presidents of colleges and universities for their input.

Larry Blackmer has asked that each Union introduce the draft Teacher and Leadership Standards at education advisories between now and May of 2017 for the purpose of receiving feedback from the field. Education Advisory will discuss the Standards for NAD adoption at their next meeting. A one page standards rationale will be provided to introduce the what, the why, and the how for standards adoption system-wide.

TEACHER AND LEADERSHIP STANDARDS

VOTED to make Chalkable online registration available to Adventist schools as per TDEC recommendation.

16:64 CHALKABLE ONLINE REGISTRATION

Since NADE is now asking conferences (and academies) to be the first line of support to schools, we want to ensure that each entity has the tools to provide support and ensure smooth implementation and updating of Data Rollup protocols each year. To help conference personnel and academy registrars understand more about the Data Rollup system and the benefit and necessity of working together (schools, conferences, unions, eAdventist, eCertification, SIS, Dashboard), the NAD is sponsoring a 2-day workshop this coming spring.

DATA ROLLUP TRAINING

- NAD will cover all expenses for two individuals per conference. These should be the ones responsible for Data Rollup and SIS support.
- This does not include salary
- Please encourage driving as much as possible - and carpooling, as well.

Larry Blackmer informed the committee that a complete digital report is available in Google Docs and that union directors will meet with NAD administration in February to discuss implementation.
